TAB 1 Exhibit A1
Valuation Estimate for: Bear Claw Cattle Company

[Provide a statement of the entity's value and the value of the estate's interest in the entity, including a description of the basis for the valuation, the date of the valuation and the valuation method used. This valuation must be no more than two years old. Indicate the source of this information.]

The cattle ranch is an operating entity that has never been formally appraised or valued other than in connection with the underlying land. There are several recent appraisals for "the ranch," which is generally considered the real estate, although the opportunity to conduct a cattle business on the land would be an inherent part of the real estate. If "the ranch" is sold, as is the party's intention, the operating company will cease to operate and have only corporate shell value.

In 2011 the ranch's gross operating revenue was $30,450. Expenses far exceeded revenue so operations as a whole result in a negative capitalization. 2012's number should be known by the due date of the next B26 form.

To estimate the fair market value of the opportunity to ranch this property might be worth would be to capitalize gross revenues at an operating company rate, say 7%. That would put the opportunity to ranch this property, in perpetuity, at a value of $435,000. It is difficult to value the opportunity to ranch on a temporary basis, however, and no other opportunity can be guaranteed to continue.

No effort is made here to value the operating entity at certain carrying capacities because no such use is planned in the near future.

The hunting rights are bit easier to analysis. The current rent is $1,000 per creature and five were taken this year. Sold in perpetuity a reasonable asking price might be estimated by capitalizing the 2012, revenue at 7% to a value of $71,428.57

"Residuals" to movie rights are not routinely bought, sold, traded, or appraised. In John McTiernan's 2002, contested divorce proceeding where the ranch was valued at 5.7 million for property division purposes, the six property rights represented by this and the other five remaining companies that deal with movie rights were valued at the then existing bank account balance.

The undersigned knows of no better way to value a string of income than to capitalize the investment necessary to earn that income. Somewhat arbitrarily for the purpose of this form 7% is used.

This company had revenue of $29,099 in 2011, and is therefore valued at $415,700. Since McTiernan receives 50% of the revenue (the remainder being the property of an ex-wife) the value must be adjusted accordingly. Since residuals decline over time this number would have to be adjusted downward to estimate value. No specific knowledge is available to the undersigned to predict anything in this regard.

TAB 6 Exhibit A6
Valuation Estimate for for: Ten Sleep, Inc.

[Provide a statement of the entity's value and the value of the estate's interest in the entity, including a description of the basis for the valuation, the date of the valuation and the valuation method used. This valuation must be no more than two years old. Indicate the source of this information.]

"Residuals" to movie rights are not routinely bought, sold, traded, or appraised. In John McTiernan's 2002, contested divorce proceeding where the ranch was valued at 5.7 million for property division purposes, the six property rights represented by this and the other five remaining companies that deal with movie rights were valued at the then existing bank account balance.

The undersigned knows of no better way to value a string of income than to capitalize the investment necessary to earn that income. Somewhat arbitrarily for the purpose of this form 7% is used.

This company had revenue of $6,419 in 2011, and is therefore valued at $91,700. Since McTiernan receives approximately 66% of the revenue (the remainder being the property of an ex-wife) the value must be adjusted accordingly. Annual revenue is expected to decline from residuals, although there can be an occasional resurgence. A number adjusted downward by at least 50% would be a more accurate estimate of present value. No specific knowledge is available to the undersigned to predict anything in this regard.
